Stable vs. divergent concepts

No claims overlap across 2+ engines. Every engine answers with its own concepts – the narrative is fully divergent.

Brand claims per engine (divergent by design):

ChatGPT: Gelenk Kit Pellets contains Glucosamin, Chondroitin, MSM, Gelenk Kit Pellets rated best-overall with 5.0, navalis arthral Horse Pellets high-dosed for competition

Gemini: NAF Superflex is renowned in sport horse segment

Suggested article

Format: Narrative-anchor article (stabilises the engine where the brand drifts) · Length: 1 900 – 3 300 words

Headline starting point: »Welche Gelenkpellets für Pferde sind in Deutschland am besten bewertet? – what Pferdegold actually does« Deterministic suggestion from silence type + Peec volume bucket. Starting point, not a lock-in.

Concrete moves

- No stable concepts detected. Decide which narrative your brand wants to own for this prompt, then seed it across owned (product page), editorial (blog), and citeable (study/PDF) assets in parallel.
 - Cross-engine lift. You are visible on ChatGPT, Gemini but invisible on AI Overview. Replicate the winning engine's source pattern: inspect top_sources in the raw MCP data for this prompt, then pursue placements on those domains.
